A VALIANT FIGHT.

How Rochester, N. Y., Wrestled With the Telephone and Won?

Rochester, N. Y., is the only city in the United States which does not generally use the Bell telephone; Gs the 20th of November, 1886, about seven hundred subscribers hang up their 'phones, and they have been hung up since!

It is the most noteworthy fight with a corporation ever known.

The cause of it was the attempt o the local Bell company whose officers all lived in another city) to exact a an inved in another city) to exact a rate per message from the subscribers, instead of a "flat rate." The people resisted it, the courts sustained the position that the license was revokable at will, the Common Council revoked it. The company ignored this action, and, without permission, creered poles in the streets and strung additional wires; but the courts held that this was unlawful.

The origin of one of her greatest industries is interesting: About ten years ago one of her foremost clizens was stricken down in the very height of a successful business career, with what his doctors said was an incurawhat his doctors said was an incura-ble disease. They gave him up to die. He then used what is now known as Warner's asfe cure, and since then has developed as the world's great champion of the people against the assumed monopoly of physicians over the treatment of dis-ease!

physicians over the treatment of disease!

His fight, too, has been a determined one, and as successful as determined. To-day he is the head of the largest proprietary medicine business in the world, having branch houses and laboratories in London, England; Toronto, Canada; Melbourne, Victoria; Sydney, New South Wates; Frankfort, Germany; Prague, Austria; Rangoon, Burmah, Many foreign governments will not permit the manufacture and sale of ermit the manufacture and sale of coprietary medicines of any name nature until their formulac value and harmlessness are by thom established, after the most searching scientific loquiries. The construction of the great iron tower for the French exhibition of 1888 has been begun in Paris. The tower is designed to be 984 feet high, or pearly twice the height of the Washington Monument, and, if constructed, will be twice as high as any artificial structure on the globe. The builders say that the most difficult part of their work will be completed by the close of this year, when they expect to have the first story, 150 feet high, constructed. Three thousand tows of ison will be used in this section alone. It is expected that the tower can be wholly completed by October of next year. It is to be built chiefly as an exhibit of eagingering skill, but it is to be used during the exhibition as an observatory, and if it should reach its extended height will be come of the wonders in the chiefly as an exhibit of eagingering skill, but it is to be used during the exhibition as an observatory, and if it should reach its extended height will be come of the wonders in the complete of the wonders and tows of ison will be used in this section alone. In a Dead Man's Pooket.

Stephen Allen Price was a man who was liked and looked up to by all who knew him. He was honest, kind and true, a warm friend and neighbor. The boys and girls all liked him because he never forget that he had been young once himself. He was never stiff and cross and boasy with them, but was their good friend. He became rich, was made Mayor of New York City, and lived to be very old. He lost his life in a steamboat disaster. Those who found his dead body found a scrap of printed paper in his pocketbook. It was so worn with oft reading that they could scarcely make out the words but this is what was on the paper:
